

Acknowledgements	xii
Introduction	1

PART ONE

BACKGROUND AND THEORETICAL CONTEXTS

1	The Rise of Globalization Theory	17
	The Public and the Academic Dimensions of Globalization	20
	The Complexity of Globalization Theory	23
	Globalization as the “Spatio-Temporal Reformulation of Social Theory”	30
	Three Phases in the Academic Study of Globalization	43
	Theoretical Faultlines between “Transformationalists” and “Skeptics”	46
2	Key Approaches to Media and the Problematic of Globalization	57
	The Concept of Media	58
	The Theoretical Plurality of Media Research	62
	The Political Economy of the Media	66
	Cultural and Media Imperialism	78
	Cultural Studies: From Cultural Materialism to Poststructuralism	83
	Cultural Studies and New Patterns in International Communication Research	98
	Medium Theory: In the Long Shadow of McLuhan	106
	Concluding Remarks	117

PART TWO

THE SPACE BEYOND THE PLACE: TECHNOLOGICAL EXPLANATIONS OF MEDIA AND GLOBALIZATION

3	Between the Old and the New: Manuel Castells, the Media and the Space of Flows	123
	The Information Age as Zeitdiagnose	135

Transformations of the Economy and Work.....	137
Castells' Views on Media and Communications.....	146
Information Versus Communication Technologies.....	147
The Media and Communications and the Space(s) of Flows.....	149
From Mass Media to the Culture of Real Virtuality.....	157
Evaluation.....	160
Selective Media Histories and the Digital Sublime.....	163
Technology: Determinant in the Last Instance.....	175
Social Power and the "Lack of Political Economic Determination"	177
Conclusion: From The Information Age to Communication Power	19 ¹
 Media as Life: Scott Lash and the Technological Order of Global Information Culture	201
Lash's Oeuvre	202
Critique of Information: Power and Technological Forms of Life	214
Media and Media Theory	225
Evaluation: The Problems of Lash's "Vitalist Problematic"	229
Questioning the Novelty of New Media	234
The End of Ideology?	238
The Continuity of Capitalist Dynamics.....	241
Critique of Information as Abolition of Critique	245

PART THREE

CULTURAL GLOBALIZATION THEORY AND THE MEDIA

National Nightmares and Cosmopolitan Dreams: Aijun Appadurai, John Tomlinson and the Cultural Specificity of Mediated Globalization	255
The Difference between Media-Technological and Cultural Perspectives.....	256
Key Elements of Cultural Globalization Theory	260
Cultural Globalization as Deterritorialization and Hybridization	267

The Media and the Deterritorialization of Imagination	281
The Rejection of “Cultural Imperialism”	290
The Media and Cosmopolitanism.....	295
Evaluation	303
No Center, No Domination?.....	306
The Persistence of Imperialism	317
The Poverty of Postmodern Cosmopolitanism.....	330

PART FOUR

CONCLUSION

6 Conclusion: Globalization Theory and the Neoliberal Moment	341
Neoliberalism and Globalization Theory	345
Neoliberalism: Utopia or Anti-Utopia?	349
The Mediatization of Social Theory and its Problematic Consequences.....	353
Final Remarks: The Importance of Utopian Thinking.....	369
 Bibliography	 379
Index	403