

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction 1

- 1 Thought' Speech, and the Poetics of Love in Renaissance Dialogue Theory 22

Introduction 22

Carlo Sigonio and Torquato Tasso: The Dialectical Turn 25

Sperone Speroni: Speech, Drama, and Love in Dialogue 37

- 2 The Mimesis of Love: Dialogue and Poetics in Sperone Speroni's Dialogo d'amore 53

- 3 The Infinite Practice of Amorous Speaking: Tullia d'Aragona and the Venetian poligrafi 108

Introduction 108

Infinite Speaking in Amorous Dialogue: Tullia d'Aragona's Dialogo Della infinita di amore 113

The Love Dialogue among Venetian literati-lovers: Betussi, Sansovino, and Gottifredi 137

Amorous Speaking and the Return to the Ciceronian Model: Betussi and Domenichi 161

- 4 Toward a French Love Dialogue: Philosophy and Literary Mimesis in Translations and Emulations by Claude Gruget' Pontus de Tyard, and Louis Le Caron 171

Introduction 171

Translating Speroni and Ebreo: From Paradox to Dialogical Labor of Love 176

Dialogue between Amorous Philosophy and Amorous Poetry: Pontus de Tyard's Solitaire premier 184

Staging the Speaking Beloved Other: Louis Le Caron's La Claire, ou de la prudence de droit 201

- 5 "A l'imitation... d'un Bembe j'ay un peu voulu fourvoyer de ma course encommencée". Innovation and Gender in French Love Dialogues: Claude de Taillemont' Etienne Pasquier' Marguerite de Navarre, and Louise Labe 220

Introduction 220

The Collective Speaking of Love: Adapting and Emulating Bembo's GU

Asolanl in France: Claude de Taillemont and Etienne Pasquier 228

Toward a Female French Love Dialogue: Marguerite de Navarre's

La Coche and Louise Labe^ Debat de Folle et ctAmour 247

Conclusion 282

Amor ordinem nescit: Montaigne's Dialogue on Love in "Sur des vers de Virgile" 282

Bibliography 309

Index 327