

Notes on Contributors vii

1 Democracy and the European Public Order 1
Jure Vidmar

part 1
Defining Populism as a Human Rights Problem

2 Populism and Universal Human Rights Law 29
Theo van Boven

3 Diversity in Europe: from Pluralism to Populism? 52
Yvonne Donders

4 The Public Participant versus the Populist Government of an Illiberal Democracy 72
Otto Spijkers

5 Enough about Populism 92
Luigi Lonardo

part 2
How Populism Affects Human Rights Standards: Theory

6 The Democratic Potential of Transnational Populism 117
Laura M. Henderson

7 Fraternité (dé-) naissante: Populist Potentialities of Human Rights 141
Yota Negishi

8 Freedom or Transformation? Conflicting Tendencies in United Nations Human Rights
Discourse 165
Gustavo Arosemena

part 3
How Populism Affects Human Rights Standards: Application

9 Political Rhetoric, Freedom of Expression and Hate Speech against Religious Believers 193
Erica Howard

10 The European Court of Human Rights and the Rise of Authoritarianism in Russia 215
Amrei Müller

11 The Effect of Populism on the Rule of Law, Separation of Powers and Judicial Independence in Hungary and Poland 256
Stoyan Panov

12 "In the Eyes of the Perpetrator": Judicial Recognition of the Identity-Based Nature of Genocide 289
Carola Lingaas

13 Final Remarks on Populism's Effect on Human Rights and Democracy in Europe 320
Jure Vidmar

Bibliography 325

Index 348